excerpt from the nature and sources of the law province of jurisprudence determined then little read in england and all but unknown in this country and since then although my work has been mainly on other lines the subject has seldom been for long wholly out of my mind i put my ideas into substantially their present shape a dozen years ago i have held them in abeyance more than the prescribed nine years but i doubt if they would ever have been published had not columbia university done me the honor of applying the lene tormentum of an invitation to give a course of lec tures on the carpentier foundation the lectures were read at columbia university in the spring of 1908 they have been here divided into thirteen chapters but no attempt has been made to change the familiar style they bore in delivery the use of homely expressions and examples helps one to keep a grasp on the facts of daily life the loss of which is the chief danger in the moral sciences there may not be so good a defence for the repetitions in these lectures readers may be provoked by what they will consider damnable iteration but here too it seemed desirable to show how in approaching the law from different points of view the same truths emerge as fundamental about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works excerpt from conflict of laws there are three general systems of legal instruction in use in american law schools the lecture the case and the text method regardless of the relative superiority of one to the others the author is convinced after seven years teaching experience that no one of these methods alone is adequate to sound thorough instruction in the law in his presentation of this difficult subject in the class room he has produced satisfactory results only by a combination of text cases and lecture in proper proportion the value of a text in stating the principles of the law in brief form can not be denied the necessity of reading leading decisions that support and apply those principles is indisputable and finally there is the general discussion in class the instructor when necessary expounding the subject imparting the benefits of his knowledge and experience and observation thereby arousing and sustaining interest in the work these are the things that elevate instruction from the mechanical to the intellectual in presenting this text therefore the author makes no defense he has embodied the fundamentals of the subject in the text in simple form he has scrupulously selected the leading decisions and included them in the notes where they are identified by large conspicuous citation finally instead of merely stating the law he has by clear simple language explained it so as to reproduce as far as possible the full value of the class instruction it is this very feature it is believed that will commend it for law school purposes to instructor and class alike about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
